

Jordan Attractions Research Pack and Restaurant Shortlist

Executive summary

Jordan's tourism offer is unusually dense for a compact country: world-famous archaeology led by Petra and Jerash, high-value faith sites around Madaba and the Jordan Valley, major desert/nature experiences in Wadi Rum, Dana, and Azraq, and a strong leisure corridor around Aqaba and the Dead Sea. Official Jordan Tourism Board material organizes the country around destination clusters including Amman, Petra, Wadi Rum, Dead Sea, Madaba, Jerash, Aqaba, Ajloun, Zarqa, Karak, Irbid, As-Salt, Umm al-Jimal, and Pella, while the Jordan Pass currently bundles entry to more than 40 attractions and publishes official opening-hour guidance for many heritage sites. <sup>1</sup>

For a readable 10-page attractions PDF, the most practical design is 30 core attractions presented as feature cards, with a few smaller alternates or map callouts, rather than forcing 80–120 tiny entries onto the pages. That recommendation is editorial, but it aligns with the amount of official metadata available per site and with the fact that many sites have seasonally variable hours, different local ticketing regimes, or operator-led access. <sup>2</sup>

The restaurant market is heavily concentrated in Amman, then in tourist-heavy hubs such as Petra/Wadi Musa, Aqaba, Madaba, and the Dead Sea. Review-platform evidence shows that Amman offers the broadest range, from Jordanian and Levantine heritage dining to rooftop, café, and Italian concepts, while Petra and Aqaba are more visitor-oriented and Madaba leans toward traditional Jordanian and mixed Mediterranean options. Ratings, address data, and price bands are most consistently available from Tripadvisor listings; official restaurant pages are useful for cuisine narratives and contact details but are less standardized. <sup>3</sup>

Because raw URLs are suppressed in this interface, the Sources column below functions as the clickable item-level URL list. Where the user asked for an image URL, I provide a stable image/source page reference: usually the official destination page or the restaurant's review/official page that contains representative photography. Direct image-file URLs were often unstable or hidden behind scripts, so stable public image pages are the best archival choice. Official tourism pages are copyrighted; Tripadvisor and most commercial restaurant pages are proprietary. Reuse for publication should therefore be treated as license unspecified / permission required unless separately cleared. <sup>4</sup>

Research method and data notes

This pack prioritizes: official Jordan Tourism Board pages, Jordan Pass pages for site hours and inclusion, Holy Land Jordan for pilgrimage sites, RSCN/Wild Jordan for reserves, Tripadvisor for restaurant ratings/addresses/price bands, and official restaurant sites where they exposed menu or concept details. When a detail was absent or inconsistent across sources, it is marked "unspecified." <sup>5</sup>

A few practical cautions matter for production. Heritage-site hours differ by season and sometimes by Ramadan; Petra opens earlier than most major sites, and Wadi Rum is treated separately from museum-style ticketed attractions. Reserve pricing also changes by trail and nationality, especially at Mujib, Azraq, and Dana. Restaurant ratings are dynamic snapshots and can change materially over time. <sup>6</sup>

Suggested PDF architecture

| Amman                  | Urban heritage              | Citadel, Roman Theatre, Jordan Museum, Souq Jara, Darat Al Funun                  | 1 hero + 4 medium thumbnails              | 450             |
| North                  | Classical north             | Jerash, Hadrian's Arch, Ajloun Castle, Tall Mar Elias, Umm Qais, Pella            | 1 panorama + 5 small cards                | 480             |
| East desert            | Desert castles and wetlands | Qasr Azraq, Azraq Wetland Reserve, Quseir Amra, Qasr al-Kharrana, Umm al-Jimal    | 1 wide landscape + 4 side images          | 430             |
| Faith route            | Madaba and Jordan Valley    | Mount Nebo, St George's, Archaeological Park, Umm ar-Rasas, Mukawir, Baptism Site | 1 mosaic detail + 5 thumbnails            | 500             |
| Wellness and adventure | Dead Sea and Mujib          | Dead Sea Public Beach, Promenade, Lowest Point area, Mujib                        | 1 full-width water image + 3 medium cards | 420             |
| Kings Highway south    | Karak, Dana                 | Karak Castle, Dana Reserve, Dana Village, White Dome/ Wadi Dana                   | 1 canyon/fort hero + 4 cards              | 440             |
| Petra core             | Main archaeological draw    | Petra park, Petra Museum, Petra by Night, Little Petra, Monastery trail highlight | 1 hero + 5 smaller images                 | 560             |
| Deep south             | Wadi Rum and Aqaba          | Wadi Rum, RumSky, Aqaba Castle, Arab Revolt Plaza, South Beach/diving callout     | 1 desert hero + 4 cards                   | 450             |

| Practical wrap-up | How to use the guide | Best seasons, opening-hour caveat, Jordan Pass note, QR/ source credits | Minimal imagery; small footer strip | 250             |

A useful production rule is to keep feature descriptions to 60–85 words each, then move ticket notes, coordinates, and opening-hour caveats into a lighter metadata row beneath each card. That lets the PDF remain scannable while still preserving the research depth in the appendix tables below. Jordan Pass and Visit Jordan are especially useful to convert into QR-coded source credits on the last page. <sup>7</sup>

Attractions dataset

Production caveats and licensing

The most important practical caveat is that fees, hours, and ratings are all moving targets. Jordan Pass itself warns that attractions may have partial closures around official holidays and advises visitors to check opening hours per attraction in advance. Many restaurant metrics—especially Tripadvisor ratings and ranking positions—are even more volatile. <sup>109</sup>

On rights and reuse, the official Visit Jordan site carries a copyright notice, and Jordan Pass pages are Ministry-owned pages with rights reserved language. Tripadvisor content is also proprietary, while many restaurant pages do not publish open image licenses. For a publishable PDF, the safest workflow is to treat the image/source pages in this report as research leads only, then replace final production imagery with licensed assets from the tourism board's media channels, direct supplier permissions, or openly licensed repositories where explicitly stated. <sup>110</sup>

Analytically, the strongest PDF will not try to be “everything in Jordan.” It will instead emphasize a balanced mix: archaeology (Petra, Jerash, Umm Qais, Karak), faith (Mount Nebo, Baptism Site, Tall Mar Elias, Mukawir), nature/adventure (Wadi Rum, Dana, Mujib, Azraq), and urban culture (Amman, Madaba, Aqaba). That structure mirrors the way official Jordan tourism bodies themselves present the country and gives the final 10-page output a clear editorial spine rather than a directory feel. 111
